The contractor agrees with the production and installation of the ice sculptures on the agreed day as specified in the proforma invoice no.: _____. The installation of the ice sculptures has to be finished by _____ (hour). The client needs to make sure that a person accountable is present or available during the installation. The client is obligated to provide a stable table on four legs for every sculpture, with a carrying capacity of _____ kg. The table needs to be covered to the ground, so that the water container will be hidden. If the agreement includes lighting of the sculpture with LED lights, a 220W electrical cable must lead to the table. If the location of the installation or the table does not meet the above requirements, the contracting team can perform corrections, at the risk of the client, that will meet safety standards. The client is responsible for the removal of the ice sculpture after the event if over, except if the terms of the agreement state otherwise (additional costs).

The client is also responsible for the return of the borrowed equipment (drainage tanks, lights...), except if the agreement states otherwise.

Risks and safety demands

The client is aware of minimal safety requirements. The client is obligated to take precautions against mechanical, water or electrical injuries. The client understands and agrees that decorations (tablecloth, flowers, food...), if placed unprofessionally around or on the drainage tank, can prevent the water from draining properly, which can cause the soaking of the table and floor.

The client sees to sculpture supervision, so that in case of a potential outflow any injuries can be prevented. After the professional installation of the exhibits the contracting team leaves the showroom and is no longer responsible for the exhibits. The client is responsible for any further changes in the installation and the consequences involved with those changes.
